

March Staff Spotlight

Scott Shepard grew up in Centerville, Ohio. During high school, Mr. Shepard participated in soccer and tennis, which is why he coached boys' soccer throughout his first seven years of his career here at Blanchester, and he currently coaches boys' tennis. Mr. Shepard became interested in politics, government, and history during high school, when he realized he was one of the only students who was actually interested in those subjects. He decided to take this interest in politics further, when he discovered that he had the unique ability to make the process of learning these subjects interesting and entertaining. Mr. Shepard attended Ohio University, where he received his undergraduate degrees in political science and education. He then attended Xavier University, where he earned his first Master's degree, and he is currently working towards his second Master in American History online through Ashland University. During college, Mr. Shepard met his wife, and they eventually had their first and only son, Grant. Mr. Shepard says that his favorite part about teaching is the wonderful students that he works with every single day. Congratulations, Mr. Shepard!
